GRANT CLUB AT DES MOINES

Uni eratates Senator Beveridge Speaks on New Possessions.

REVIEWS THE NEW AMERICAN SITUATION

"Will Fight It Out on this Line"-Hon. John I. Webster of Omaha Treats of the United States as the Nation of Destiny.

DES MOINES, April 27 .- (Special.)-The celebration of Grant's birthday by republicans of Iowa was under the auspices of the Grant club of Des Moines, one of the strongest political clubs of the state, with a limited membership, owning a costly clubhouse and much given to banquets with distinguished men as guests. On this occasion the Grant club had made arrangements for Senator A. J. Beveridge of Indiana to be the attraction of the occasion, with other distinguished speakers, including Hon. John L. Webster of Omaha, Senators Allison and Dolliver of Iowa. Both Allison and Dolliver were absent. The address of Senator Beveridge was on "The American Situation; We Will Fight It Out on This Line," and Mr. Webster spoke on "The United States, the Nation of Destiny." Besides the members of the club and many others of Des Moines, there were present from outside the city Governor Shaw, Congressmen Thomas and Conner, Judges Smith, Towner, Stevens and Church, A. W. Lee and S. M. Mahon of Ottumwa, Senator W. H. Berry of Indianola, Edmund E. Nichols of Perry, H. W. Byers of Harlan. W. M. Beardshear of Ames and many others In the afternoon Governor Shaw entertained a large party of the visitors at luncheon. The banquet was in the dining room of the Savery and was attended by 300 per-

Senator Beveridge said:

"pportualty of the Philippines. 'pp-riusity of the Philippines.

The Philippine islands came to us by conquest and purchase. They are equal in extent to the four states which form the heart of the Mississippi valley, and richer even than that garden spot. Over this dominion we are establishing order and law more rapidly than the same achievement ever was accomplished anywhere or at any time under similar circumstances. When this work is done—when the foundation of a permanent peace is finally laid, an orderly government must be erected and then maintained. This work is in our Grant Control of the problem of the conspiring against the welfare of the Cuban people; we are providing for the welfare of the Cuban people. When we provide that Cuba shall never become entangled in foreign relations we are not destroying Cuban independence; we are establishing it and setting metes and bounds where all interference shall meet the sentinel of American authority. When we provide that American guns from Cuban ports shall command the entrances to the gulf we are not impairing the safety of the Cuban people; we are guaranteeing it by the blood of every American soldier who mans our Cuban garrisons pledged to be shed to the last drop if need be in defense of the Cuban people. And when we ordain that at any time American authority may reenter Cuba, to protect rights, property, liberty itself, we do not demolish Cuban liberty; we preserve and defend Cuban liberty; because we preserve and defend Grder, law and justice, and order, justice and law are the methods of liberty.

Suzerainty Over Cuba.

Suzerainty Over Cuba.

Our Cuban legislation is the most important development of national power since the constitution was adopted. Upon the future use of that power in other situations and in other quarters of the globe may depend not only the preservation of the interests of the American people, but the peace of the whole world. Within the present century international complications will occur where territory may be assigned to the keeping of the republic by the other great powers of the world. We may not want to annex such territory, thus making its inhabitants citizens of the republic, and yet up to our Philippine period annexation was the only method we shall not want to own it as property and govern it as a possession, and yet up to the hour of our Cuban legislation annexation and ownership were the only methods we had employed. But our Cuban legislation effeates a new method of practical guardianship of any territory which way fall to us.

No man can now deny that the republic may be suzerain wherever the interests of the world may make that form of control convenient. Heretofore we could only annex acquired territory or govern it as a possession. But by the method devised in our Cuban legislation any territory falling into our keeping may be given its separate government by its own people, but assisted in its foreign relations, restrained in its finances and helped in its internal workings by the government of the United States. The value of such a development of national power as we have exercised in our Suzerainty Over Cuba.

Trend of the Trusts.

The developments of business are bringing to pass as actual realities those things which, to the mere man of words, have been nothing but hoped-for impossibilities. One of the most prosperous railroad companies of America is making stockholders of its employes and finds that the experiment pays. More than a hundred business houses in the United States are making partners of their employes and find that the experiment pays. He is indeed a daring pessimist who denies that the stock of the mighty modern combinations of production which control the necessities of the people will finally be held by the people themselves—small quantities in the hands daring pessimist who denies that the stock of the mighty modern combinations of production which control the necessities of the people will finally be held by the people themselves—small quantities in the hands of each of a vast number of individuals, instead of vast quantities in the hands of each of a vast number of individuals. The idea of co-operation is working out its own realization.

American industrial evolution and American international relations are interwoven. But no matter what tariff policy is pursued our European markets must comparatively diminish. That is, while they will increase, they will not increase in proportion to their growth in the past. Our relative preponderance of trade with Europe cannot be maintained. The reason is that the European nations themselves will more and more supply their own needs, because they will mors and more adopt American methods of industrial and financial combination, tariff protection and all those ways and means of commercial power of which America is master. For this reason the trade of China and the whole far east becomes not only desirable but necessary to us. To this trade the Philippines constitute the key.

While America wants no part of China, while America will decline to be an active participant in China's commercial partition, America will insist upon American advantages being preserved in every province of the Orient where any other power asserts its influence. America prefers that the integrity of China, commercially as well as politically, shall be preserved and that the door of the far east shall be kept open to every merchant and manufacturer of every nation of the world on equal terms. But America will net go to war to prevent England, Germany, Russia, France or any other country from asserting their respective spheres of commercial influence in China. America wants no war anywhere or at any time when it can be avoided without sacrificing the honor or interest of the American people. All that America is concerned in its that when China's part ness, where ambition need never be stined by servitude and where from the humblest beginning there might be attained the crown and glory of true manhood.

Birth of Our Country.

From these moving causes and these sources may be traced the birth of our country. Since then the tide of emigration from the decadent nations steadily kept moving to this, the new government of the people, until we recognize as among our most patriotic clitisens many whose ancestry bowed the knee to the crowned heads of Europe, while they in the cycle of events now till their own broad acres, labor in their own workshops and join hands with the American of purest blood in the upbuilding of the nation they are proud to call their own.

Such a race of people are bound to win in all the contests where energy plays a part, where honor has its fleid of operation and where national glory is to be achieved. As a nation we are but a century and a quarter old, yet we have surpassed all ideals and outrun all prophecies. We are welcomed as an aily and feared as a foc. Seward was right when he said that out of our country, as out of Sinal, was to be sounded forth the tidings and the trumpets of reformation to all the nations.

The United States in the fulfilment of its destiny stands in the way of the old aristocratic governments extending their dominions and has checked their grasping characteristics. The position of the United States on the American continent is unique. It occupies less than a third of North America and yet it dominates the whole western hemisphere. It has said to all other nations of the world: "You shall take no part of Central or South America," and yet it does not ask any of it for its own. It has extended its influence over the Pacific by holding the Philippine Islands, which give it a commanding position in the waters of the western ocean. It has said to the allied powers that China was not to be disintegrated and that the people of Asia shall govern themselves. They listened and acquiesced. What is it that said to the all
